

8 Good Reasons to Advertise

During difficult economic times an effective marketing campaign can help to uplift your business, distinguishing you from your competitors and helping you growing your client base.

Well-respected and well-read, Creamer Media's Engineering News & Mining Weekly provide high impact print and digital platforms for your to communicate with key business decision-makers - the very people that you would like to target with information about your company's offerings.

Sponsored Posts on the Engineering News & Mining Weekly websites and in email newsletters, integrated into an online Press Office, sponsored tweets on Twitter and sponsored status updates on Facebook allow companies to control and shape their digital presence in new and exciting ways.

Engineering News & Mining Weekly's print circulations are holding steady, while the circulation numbers of most other magazines are falling sharply.

The weekly frequency of Engineering News & Mining Weekly ensures that the magazine content is current and well read. Research confirms that 67% of readers read every issue of the magazine, with another 8% reading five out of six issues.

As opposed to certain very narrow, niche publications, Engineering News & Mining Weekly's broad news coverage opens doors for companies to move laterally and win business ventures in new sectors.

Engineering News & Mining Weekly has a large paid-for circulation, the magazine is in high demand.

As reader habits evolve, so do Engineering News & Mining Weekly, our news is now available on many platforms - print magazines, e-magazines, email newsletters, social media, websites, mobi sites and smartphone apps. Each platform has its own readership - with minimal overlap. For example - only 17% of Creamer Media's online readership reads the print magazines.

Engineering News & Mining Weekly are media partners for a significant number of industry conferences and exhibitions - both locally and abroad. By advertising in the editions distributed at these events, companies receive value-added exposure to attendees at such events.

Engineering News & Mining Weekly also has a large, controlled circulation at South Africa's international airports and airports in Zimbabwe, Nigeria and Zambia, as well as weekly distribution on board regional flights, ensuring readership by local and international business travellers.